FLEX Financial Solution

THE PAIN
TODAY'S GOVERNMENT ACCOUNTING SYSTEMS ARE RIGID

The crux of any entity that handles fiscal transactions is the accounting system. This includes the various agencies that operate the daily functions of government. The primary transactions of these agencies include the commitment of funds, obligation of funds, and the processing of invoices. Every taxpayer dollar must be accounted for with these standardized process. Because of the nature and importance of the government accounting system, there is a certain natural rigidity with regard to system changes. This has become a significant challenge for a number of agencies as requirements for reporting and regulatory compliance frequently change and are distinct for each organization.
